Tax policy services

How does your company plan for the latest tax legislative and regulatory developments?

With the fiscal pressures of the current environment and the ongoing discussions about comprehensive tax reform, taxes are in the public spotlight. A number of expired and expiring tax provisions will need to be addressed in the upcoming months, which brings to the forefront a greater potential for tax reform than in decades past. Companies must stay on top of legislative, regulatory, and administrative developments to properly anticipate and react to the issues that will have the largest impact on their businesses.

An idea to consider:

Successful companies often seek advice and insight related to how changes in Washington affect their approach to critical tax issues.

- How do you analyze the practical impact of Administration tax proposals on your company or your association members?
- How do you effectively develop strategies to further your company's objectives with policymakers?
- How do you perform revenue and budget analyses of legislative proposals?
- What understanding does your company or your membership have regarding the impact of private sector decisions on the economy?

What value can you realize?

Firsthand insight and experience can help companies navigate the processes and procedures of Congress and the Administration to:

- Keep ahead of tax legislative developments with timely updates and analysis on issues important to your company
- Develop strategies in anticipation of tax law changes
- Develop statistics to advance your company's or association's point of view with government decision-makers
